

HTM Security Training will conduct an Introduction to Firearms class. The class is designed for individuals who wish to learn about firearms but have little to no experience with them or those who have been without contact with firearms for an extended period of time. The class will mainly concentrate on handguns but will touch on long guns, both shotgun and rifle. There will be great stress placed on safe handling and storage of firearms. Students should leave the class not only knowing how to safely handle a firearm themselves but with the ability to identify whether people around them with firearms in their possession are safe to be around.

The class is one day in the classroom, consisting of approximately seven hours of actual class time. Students may not bring firearms or ammunition into the classroom. No test is required, and appropriate class discussion is acceptable. If students wish to fire on the range after the classroom portion separate arrangements will be made.

The charge for the basic class is $35.00, $37.82 with NM tax. The charge for firing range is dependent on whether a range will have to reserved or not students their own firearms and ammunition. A minimum of two students is needed for a class and if a group of six is guaranteed a reduction of $10.00 in charge per individual will be made.
